

French Factory Wheels Whir Busily to Supply Nazi Military Machine

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—About 90 per cent of French industry is working today on German order, according to both French and foreign economic experts in France.

Thus, Franco-German "collaboration" in every important practical sense except the military, is in full swing and has been for months despite the windy discussions at Vichy which have tended to give the outside world the impression that collaboration was something yet to be determined.

Industrial collaboration with Germany started immediately after the signing of the armistice last June. The opinion was universal in France at that time that the defeat of Britain and the end of the war was but a few weeks off.

Industrialists, almost without exception, hurried to climb on Germany's new European bandwagon.

By Oct. 1, French industries had contracted for the manufacture of 2,700,000,000 francs worth of war materials for Germany. These included 600,000,000 francs worth of aluminum, by the Aluminum company of France (near Marseilles); 240,000,000 for optical instruments by the Lavallois company; 983,000,000 for locomotives; 75,000,000 for barges; 8,000,000 for Morane planes.

Remember, those figures were just up to Oct. 1, 1940. Since then they have been enormously surpassed. The list of industries letting contracts which made up the 2,700,000,000-franc figure did not include the big automobile, rubber and steel industries which are now working on German order.

The material for which these contracts were entered was, of course, far exceeded in value by equipment and goods which were requisitioned and sequestered. For example 450 boats were seized outright, thousands of automobiles and trucks, rolling stock, and vast supplies of grain, gas and oil. Total value ran into billions of francs.

Many of the industrialists who rushed in to work for Germany last summer, thinking a British defeat near, are not so sure of German victory now and do not

2 'Rattle Traps' Break Down at Fires

ONE FAILS ON RUN TO SECOND LUMBER BLAZE

Booster Pump Equipment on Two Antiquated Trucks 'Gives Up Ghost.'

The second lumber yard fire in three days left Mansfield today with a big dent in its fire fighting equipment. Two of the city's five booster-tank equipped trucks, styled by Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton as "rattle-traps," collapsed while on runs last night.

The city's oldest piece of equipment, a Packard purchased in 1919, "gave up the ghost" after working vainly for almost two hours to check a stubborn blaze in a lumber yard owned by C. C. Constance, Newville road. After pouring five tanks full of water into the fire, the booster pump chain broke, putting it out of commission.

The booster equipment consists of a pump on the fire trucks, used to force water under pressure from the tanks on the trucks. It is used principally where the fire is located outside the hydrant district.

The other equipment casualty occurred on the scene of the $100,000 Home Materials fire. An 18-year-old pumper from No. 4 was called out in the late afternoon to put out a blaze which flared up again in the ruins of the fire. In the midst of operations, a pin on the booster rotary motor was sheared off, putting it out of commission.

Vitamins Balance Calories, Expert Says at School

Modern vegetable cookery and fresh vegetable arrangement were emphasized by Mrs. Mabel B. Bowen, food expert, at today's session of The Mansfield News-Journal all-electric cooking school held at the Madison theater.

"We don't need to cut down on our calories if we have enough vitamins and minerals in our diet," Mrs. Bowen told her audience of 1,000 homemakers.

Attendance today showed an increase over the opening session yesterday and an even greater number is expected Thursday. Home economics classes from seven high schools will join the ranks of the seasoned homemakers tomorrow.

Represented will be John Simpson Junior high and Mansfield Senior high, Belleville, Butler, Lucas, Lexington, and Madison High schools.

Demonstrating ways of cooking vegetables so as to retain both minerals and vitamins, Mrs. Bowen in her program today, also tossed together a salad to show the important place vegetables have not only in health and diet but as a means of table decoration as well.

She amused her hearers with all kinds of household chat during Nazis Agree Von Papan's Back But Say Nothing on Turkey.

BERLIN — (AP) — Authorized sources revealed at last today that Fraz Von Papan, German ambassador to Turkey, now is in Germany, but they declined to say anything about the status of Turkish-German relations.

A London report that Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's deputy, had gone on a special mission to Spain was categorically denied.

Order From Mayor Keeps Subway Open

Locke Declares Closing Would Be 'Foolish'; Overrules Crafton.

Mayor William J. Locke announced today that he ordered City Engineer W. C. Statler to plan for the maintenance of traffic through one-half of the Park avenue east subway next week during the construction of a new water line under the street pavement.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton last week announced that the subway would be completely closed during the work to guard against any possible motor accidents. Statler had supported Crafton's decision saying that the danger to motorists would be too great.

The mayor also said today that his plan of keeping one-half of the subway open should considerably shorten the time necessary to complete the project.

Crafton and Statler had estimated that it would take the greater part of a week to allow the construction but the mayor said that the work could be done within three days. Work on the line will begin next Tuesday.

Mayor Locke said that one-half of the street would be kept open while the line was laid under the other. Then, following the repaving of the completed half, the process would be reversed.

Concrete piers divide the two traffic lanes through the subway. Under the mayor's plan, traffic from both east and west will travel over one lane, with cars coming from one direction being permitted to pass through while those

'KEEP OUT'

U. S. Adopts Stern Policy on Fleeing Nazi Prisoners.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States put a stern new "keep out" policy into effect today for German prisoners of war who seek haven here after escape from Canada.

The action followed the disclosure that Franz Von Werra, Nazi war flier who escaped Canada three months ago, had jumped bond of $15,000 and fled the United States for Peru.

Attorney General Jackson ordered the borders closed to escaped prisoners last night. He called Von Werra's flight "a flagrant abuse of neutral hospitality."

It was considered likely that the ruling would produce sharp reaction in Berlin.

Six-year-old Diana Jeanne Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Schultz, 527 Crescent road, will soon be bound for Hollywood with a seven-year contract to Warner Brothers in her traveling case.

And her blue eyes sparkle beneath the fringe of her blond Dutch bob whenever she talks about it.

It's even more exciting than when she was given the role of "Pud" in the Toledo Repertoire company's production, "On Borrowed Time," in which she played a little boy and had her hair curled.

Just Before 'Junk' Fire Truck Gave Up

After pouring four tanks of water into a lumber kiln fire at the home of C. C. Constance on Newville road, No. 3's "rattle-trap" booster pumper broke down last night. Firemen above connect the booster to a section of fire hose just before the chain on the booster parted, putting it out of commission. Firemen said it would be necessary to shop through junk yards to obtain another chain for the obsolete equipment.

SOUTHERN COAL OPERATORS TALK

Meet With Union Today After Senator Threatens To Subpena Them.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Southern Appalachian coal mine operators, facing congressional subpoena with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (CIO) unless mines are re-opened by Friday, confer today with union representatives in an effort to reach a wage-hour agreement.

Spokesmen for the southern coal operators conference, in response to the pressure of President Roosevelt, met briefly with union officials last night and adjourned until this afternoon to permit both sides to hold separate discussions.

The mines have been closed since April 1, when the old contract expired. Northern operators have agreed on terms for a

Beaverbrook said that "up to this moment we have only lost one aircraft on the ferry service between America and this country."

READY FOR WAR

Knox Says Torpedo Boats Set For Delivery To Britain.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Knox said today that about 20 fast naval motor torpedo boats were ready for delivery to Great Britain as a part of the lend-lease program, and possibly were on the way now.

Knox said the boats, capable of more than a mile a minute, were to be shipped across, rather than undertaking the trans-Atlantic trip under their own power. The navy had 28 available, Knox said, and the British were supplied from these.

Knox told his press conference also that the navy was negotiating with Canada for construction in Canada of a number of warships, probably of the new British Corvette type, such as are used to escort convoys.

FDR ASKS U. S. TAKE LONG VIEW

Says Americans Should See War In Light of History; Renews Aid Promise.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON — In President Roosevelt's judgment, Americans should take a long view of the fighting abroad and resolve to maintain England as the main defense of democracy.

In measured tones, he told his press conference yesterday that the war would not be won by one sea fight, or by one defeat in Greece or even the whole Mediterranean.

The people of the United States, he said, should view the struggle in the light of history and not allow themselves to be lifted to a pinnacle one day because of a British victory in the Mediterranean, only to sink to the depths later on word of German successes.

The war can only be won, he asserted, by keeping the main defense of democracy going. That defense, he said, was England. He answered with an emphatic affirmative when questioned whether he was confident that the defense of England would be kept going.

War supplies will be kept moving to Great Britain in undiminished quantities, he declared with emphasis.

Following up that statement, he was asked if the question of convoys now had to be considered to get the supplies through the Nazi counter blockade. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he did not live in Delphi—the home of a noted Greek oracle.

OPPOSITION TO HUGE TAX PLAN GROWS

Congressional Committeemen Reported Balking at Stiffer Surtax.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The first evidence appeared today of developing opposition to the treasury's drastic plan for collecting from two to six times as much income tax from taxpayers in the low and middle brackets.

Part of a program to raise $3,600,000,000 in new federal revenue, the treasury proposal would impose a schedule of new and higher surtaxes on everyone who pays a cent income tax.

The plan, if adopted, would have the effect of making the tax rate on the lowest incomes 16.5 per cent. The present basic rate for the lowest bracket is 4 per cent, but taxpayers must add 10 per cent to their payments as a special defense levy. The higher rates would yield an estimated $1,517,100,000 of the new revenues sought. Other levies would produce the remainder.

In normal times, surtaxes are something that cause no concern to income taxpayers in the lower brackets. At present an individual must have a taxable income of more than $4,000 before he was to pay a surtax. If the treasury program is adopted, however, the surtax and the basic tax would apply simultaneously—to the very first dollar of taxable income.

Both the current and the proposed income rates include the 10 per cent defense surtax—or tax-on-a-tax—imposed by congress last year.

The treasury surtax schedule, it was reported authoritatively, already has encountered opposition

DELAYS SESSION

Porch Changes Meeting Date on Electric Rate Contract.

City council's public utilities committee will meet Thursday or Friday night to consider the five-year contract offer of the Ohio Public Service company to lower domestic rates, Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today.

The committee session was scheduled for tonight, but Porch said he would not be able to get the necessary data compiled by that time.

He said he started the task last night and found it will require more time than he anticipated. He said he is collecting light and power rate statistics from other cities served by the company to submit to the committee for a decision on the firm's rate offer.

At a previous meeting utility committee members were unable to agree on the recommendation of an ordinance embodying the five-year rate offer.

Army of Epirus Quits, Germans Smash British

Crash Through Rearguard at Pass of Thermopylae; George II Goes to Island of Crete; Pathway to Athens Open to Nazis.

BULLETIN

ATHENS — (UP) — The British fought on in Greece today, making one more stand at a new line against the full power of the German army. As the Greek campaign entered its gravest hours the tired British imperial forces stood on their new line northeast of Athens awaiting the onrush of the German forces.

(By Associated Press)

Greece's army of Epirus surrendered today, King George II fled Athens with his government to the Isle of Crete, and Berlin reported that Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg armies had "annihilated" the British rearguard at Thermopylae and swept on through the pass.

Thus, in 18 days of violent assault, the battle of the Balkans appeared to have all but ended in an Allied debacle.

Nazi quarters in Berlin said at least 250,000 Greek troops capitulated unconditionally, caught in an Axis trap in their retreat from Albania.

The Germans said Nazi panzer columns plunging through historic Thermopylae Pass, 100 miles from Athens, were relentlessly pursuing the British expeditionary forces in retreat toward the Hellenic capital.

With German Stuka dive-bombers reported to have destroyed seven ships totalling 37,000 tons and damaged 12 others in Greek waters within the past 24 hours, Berlin spokesmen expressed the belief that few B. E. F. soldiers in Greece would ever see home again.

"The ships attacked were chiefly transports to which had aboard units of British troops fleeing from Greece," Hitler's high command said.

"Only God and the weather" can save the British, a Nazi official asserted.

"Our scouts are watching every bay and harbor in Greece. If the weather becomes so bad that visibility is very poor, some ships may escape temporarily, but we will get them later."

AFLAME: British Naval Guns Set Fire to Tripoli Harbor

By LARRY ALLEN

WITH THE BRITISH BATTLE FLEET, Bombarding Tripoli, Libya, Monday—(Delayed)—(AP)—The red hot guns of Britain's Mediterranean battle fleet set Tripoli harbor aflame today in what officers said was the biggest and most spectacular bombardment of naval history.

They pumped more than a thousand tons of high explosives into the Barbary coast base of the Germans and Italians.

Fifteen-inch, 6-inch and 4.5-inch projectiles from the battleships rumbled over the high-bastioned Moorish walls of Mussolini's last big African stronghold, starting great fires, crushing enemy striking bases like egg shells and terrorizing the population.

The guns' scorching firing continued steadily for 42 minutes from 5 a. m., repeatedly scoring direct hits.

I was aboard the most powerful battleship of the fleet, close to the streaks of flame from her powerful guns. They turned blackness into light and the one-ton shells rumbled through the night with a noise like a rushing subway train.

The huge shells exploded on Tripoli with shattering force and the entire seafloor seemed ablaze.

EMPTY: Experts Assert Nazi Balkan Conquests Add Little

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Germany's conquest of Yugoslavia and the overwhelming prospects of a companion victory in Greece will add little or nothing to improve the Nazi economic position, informed experts here said today.

On the contrary, these authorities declared, the latest triumphs of German arms may prove economically costly, for the devastation wrought by the Balkan blitzkrieg is likely to cause a serious curtailment in the flow of supplies which the third reich was receiving before Hitler struck at the two countries.

Even discounting war damage, it was said, German economic gains would be negligible.

Neither Yugoslavia nor Greece produce oil or any of the other major war materials of which there are existing or potential shortages in Germany.

While both countries produce some supplies which can be utilized by Germany, it was explained that the Germans long since have been securing everything available. Yugoslavia has been supplying chiefly foodstuffs and minerals, while Greece has been furnishing the Nazis with olive oil, some mineral ores, and fruit.

With 80 per cent of its population engaged in farming, Yugoslavia has been sending all farm exports to Germany or countries now under German domination.

Greece, too, is an agricultural nation, with half her people so engaged. Tobacco represents approximately 40 per cent of all exports and half of the sales have been to Germany.

in the past week. Dr. R. C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, announced that cases were being reported at a rate of 22 daily, an increase of two daily in the last seven days.

Rehder said that 510 cases have been reported for April up until today, 324 of which occurred in the city and 186 in the county. Last Thursday only 435 cases had been recorded.

The health commissioner asked that the public co-operate with the department. He said that it was being taxed to its limits and that several activities, such as the well-baby clinic and school inspections, had been dropped to allow more time to handle the situation.

Eighty-six cases were reported prior to April, bringing the total for the year to 596. The greatest amount yet recorded was in 1938 when 1,274 cases were reported. The disease recurs cyclically at intervals of about three years.

Rehder said that it was impossible to predict whether the peak for the epidemic was yet in sight.

EXPERIMENT

Brighter Colors May End Sleep Air In Room.

NEW WILMINGTON, Del.—(AP)—Classrooms at Westminster college will be done over in colors like salmon apricot and "cool green" in an experiment to relieve the monotony of drab walls for students and thus keep sleepy ones awake.

Moving figure in the plan is Prof. Harold J. Brennan, head of the art department, who has been college and university classrooms are the "last etadel of drabness" and should be "individualized."

"There would be fewer dozing and sleep, students if classrooms were made attractive, instead of being merely 50 chairs surrounded by 80 feet of blackboards and bare walls," Brennan said.

WORK ON ICE

WHITEFIELD, N. H.—(AP)—Amateur sculptors welding hatchets, blowtorches and other tools hacked up 600 ice cakes weighing 200 pounds each in competing for cash prizes in ice sculpture at the annual Whitefield winter carnival.

RACE TO CHURCH

Wedding Becomes Golden For Once Rival Couples.

Young couples who wanted to get married raced each other to the local church here 50 years ago, but they both made it at the same time for a golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Vitalis J. Marchand won the original sprint and finished getting married a few minutes before Mr. and Mrs. Cyprien Arceneaux.

Recently, both couples came back to the church with their families and friends for a joint golden wedding ceremony in which the priest read the same vows they had heard 50 years before. Now the Marchands and Arceneaux have eight children and 13 grandchildren in each family.

George Satterlee, president of the Mansfield Braves, was chuckling all over the place yesterday as he waved a piece of paper in his hand.

"I never thought we'd get this," he declared. "This" was the signed contract of Pat Patterson, relief hurler of the Braves who wound up last season with one victory and nine defeats.

For several months Pat has been trying desperately to obtain his release from Mansfield, and now, faced with the competition of a flock of promising youngsters, he may be lucky to stick with the club.

"I've been getting a bunch of letters from high school coaches who have pitchers to place in organized ball," Satterlee said, "and some of the boys will be given a chance to make good here."

"Coaches at Marion, Chatham and Louisville already have been told to send their boys along."

It appears that on the Braves mound staff that "old college try" will be replaced by high school "do or die."

Walt Weimer, Madison high grid star, has just about decided to enter Akron university next fall, and it appears the Akron coaching staff has decided that the Ram fullback will look very good as a Zipper tackle in 1942.

Weimer made a trip to Akron to look things over last week, and remained to play every minute of Thursday, Friday and Saturday scrimmage sessions with the Zipper frosh against the Akron varsity.

Spiv Harris, Mt. Vernon News sports editor, who used to be a member of The News-Journal staff, tells of a woman who remarked, as she glanced through the bowling box scores:

"There certainly are a lot of those Blind brothers, and they're all pretty consistent bowlers."

In other sports it's hard to find So many people who are Blind.

(Unless, of course, you're speaking of umpires and referees.)

Which reminds me of the night Harry Mehock, watching a wrestling match at the high school, suddenly exclaimed: "That fellow has been down for five minutes. Why doesn't the referee call it?"

And then he concluded, sadly: "Referee long-time no-see."

Mansfielders to Roll In A. B. C.

Leiderkranz and Lutz bowlers will leave tomorrow at midnight for St. Paul and the A. B. C. tournament.

Leiderkranz is scheduled to roll in his team event Friday at 8:30 p. m. and the Eagles at 10:30.

Doubles teams booked Saturday at 11:10 a. m. are: Henry Michaels and Duke Weber, Harold Selby and Bill Donnellan, Clyde Ritter and Christ Herlick.

At 4:10 p. m. Saturday the following doubles teams are scheduled for a turn on the lanes: James Perrine and Jim W. Smith, Orr and Art H. Smith, Mike Smith and Robert P. Smith.

Frye Baker is scheduled to roll in the Eagles' team event at 10:30 p. m.

Champs Drop to Cellar

Plight of Tigers Grows Worse on Draft Threat.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)
THE Detroit Tigers' plight is something to ponder these days.

The American league champions are in the cellar, with only one victory in five games and with more grief lying in wait for the day that Hank Greenberg is inducted into the army.

Nobody expected the Bengals to repeat their surprise pennant triumph of last year, but their collapse this spring is one of the new season's mysteries.

Yesterday, Bill Dietrich of the Chicago White Sox almost pitched a no-hitter against them. The bespectacled righthander didn't give a safety until he had one out in the ninth. Then came an error, a single by Greenberg and a homer by Rudy York. The no-hitter was gone, but the game still went to Chicago, 6-3.

Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati gave Chicago fans a glimpse of his 1938 double no-hit form with a four-hit, 12-strikeout performance that bested Bill Lee and smothered the Cubs, 1-0.

Hugh Casey subdued the New York Giants for the second time in three days to give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-4 victory. He allowed only seven hits, and three errors, figured in the Giants' scoring.

The Boston Red Sox held onto the American league lead although beaten for the second straight day by the Washington Senators, 12-5. The Red Sox were held to eight hits by Walt Masterson and really came apart at the seams, making four errors and giving up 15 hits.

Less McCrabb held the New York Yankees to six safeties, three of them homers, as the Philadelphia Athletics nudged out a 6-5 decision with five runs in a sloppy sixth inning. The winning marker scored on Dick Siebert's single with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Elden Auker's crafty eight-hit hurling gave the St. Louis Browns a 6-3 verdict over the Cleveland Indians, although the Browns were rationed to seven hits by Al Milnar and Clint Brown.

The senior circuit came up with two marathon games. In one, the Phillies snapped a six-game losing streak with two runs in the 14th inning to beat the Boston Bees, 6-4; in the other, the St. Louis Cardinals edged past the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-8, with two runs in the 12th after Pittsburgh had scored once.

Fifth of Point Wins Track Meet

By the narrow margin of a fifth of a point Brinkerhoff edged out Newman 27.4-5 to 27.3-5 in a triangular grade school track meet yesterday at Stadium field.

Prospect brought up the rear with 7.3-5 points.

Brinkerhoff won the final event of the day, the 110-yard relay, to take the meet.

Brinkerhoff, a senior, was followed by Newman, a senior, and Prospect, a senior, in the 110-yard relay.

Brinkerhoff, Newman and Prospect were the only seniors to finish in the top three in the 110-yard relay.

Horvath Figures In Wooster Grid Plans Next Fall

WOOSTER—Mike Horvath, former Mansfield high grid star, now a freshman at the College of Wooster, figures in the plans of Coach John Swigart as he seeks replacements for his Wooster eleven for the coming season. Pictured here, Swigart is explaining how he wants his charges to handle the ball. He picked out four of the outstanding members of last fall's yearling eleven to take the lesson. The players, from left to right, are Roger Stoneburner of Wooster high, Mike Horvath of Mansfield high, John Smeltz, of Cleveland Heights and Elgin Deldrick, of Lorain high.

Braves Report For Practice

Batterymen Slated To Arrive Here Tonight.

Preparations for the 1941 Ohio State league season will get underway at the Fairground tomorrow when Manager Alex Clawson runs the vanguard of the candidates through it's paces.

The new mentor of the Mansfield Braves arrived in Mansfield this morning. He will greet the pitchers and catchers when they report this evening.

The initial workout of the new campaign will be held sometime tomorrow, probably in the morning, according to Clawson.

Among the pitchers slated to report this evening are Rex Benton, Tony Drewick, Chuck Byers and Schuyler Patterson, holdovers from last season. Other pitchers to report today are newcomers recommended for tryouts by the parent club, Cleveland.

Listed among the catchers to report today are Tim Mangan and Don Wentz of the 1940 team, in addition to a number of rookies. Walter Missler, a catcher of last year's club, is a holdout.

George Satterlee, president of the Mansfield club, said today that he has not been informed whether or not Missler will accept the club's terms. But Satterlee indicated that he was not worried. The catching corps, apparently, is well-fortified.

Fielders and outfielders will report on May 1.

Groundskeeper Mose McCulloch and his crew of workmen have the field in splendid shape for the arrival of the ball players.

The Ohio State league season opens on May 14 with the Braves playing hosts to the Lima Pandas, 1940 league and Shagbinessy playoff champions.

COON CHASE BOOKED AT ASHLAND SUNDAY

A $100 purse coon chase will be held April 27 at the Ashland county fairgrounds, 2 miles west of Ashland on route 42.

Lunch and refreshments will be served on the grounds and there will be plenty of shelter in case of bad weather.

The chase will be sponsored by Cowell and Fox of Perryville.

SPORTSMEN FORM CLUB

Charles Mill Group To Develop 'Paradise.'

First steps toward the development of Charles Mill as a sportsman's paradise were taken last night when a group of Mansfield men organized the Charles Mill Sportsman's Club.

Primary object of the club, Leo Yunker explained today, is to cooperate with the Muskingum Conservancy board and the state of Ohio in the development of the area for fishing, hunting, boating and skating, and also as a beauty spot.

Cottage sites along the conservancy project will soon be available, and sportsmen have been offered a 25 per cent reduction in rentals if they take sites in groups of 25.

"We expect to line up 100 members for the new club within a week," Yunker said, "and I wouldn't be surprised if it eventually reaches a membership of 500."

Carl Breyman was named temporary chairman of the group and Yunker secretary-treasurer.

Committee chairmen appointed were: Paul Cropper, ducks; Robert Derror, sailboating; Joe Badinger, outboard motors; Damon Zellner, fishing; Mayor Locke, reforestation and landscaping; Hubert Bollman and Paul Tappan skating.

Bob Feller Warns Pitch Stealers Not to Do It

Declares Serious Accident Might Result If They Guess Wrong

By RAY BLOSSER
CLEVELAND—Bob Feller warned American league pitch-stealers today to stop calling his throws or half their clubs "will be in the hospital."

The 22-year-old strikeout king made it plain he wouldn't toss any "bean balls"—but that the result might be serious if an opposing batter were looking for a curve and got a blazing fast ball which didn't "break" when it reached his head.

Rapid Robert's thoughts were focused particularly on the third base coaching boxes occupied by those astute baseball observers, Coach Mule Haas of Chicago and Manager Del Baker of Detroit. Haas told the White Sox what to expect when they beat Feller on opening day, 1 to 3, and Baker frequently called them for the Tigers last season although Feller beat the Bengals Saturday, 2 to 1.

"I always knew they could tell what I was going to throw but they didn't try to call them until last year," Feller observed.

Warning Haas and Baker not to do it again, Feller declared "My pitches are my bread and butter and nobody's going to steal them. If they try, the batters may be picking baseballs out of their ears. If they are looking for a curve and accidentally get a fast one it wouldn't surprise me any."

Some baseball observers calculate Baker's enterprise in advising Tiger batters by signs or shouts of Bob's coming pitch was responsible for Feller losing five of eight starts against the Bengals last year. Detroit was the only club to win the season series from Bob.

Shorts Ruled Out For Co-Ed Golfers

COLUMBUS (AP)—Co-eds participating in the first Women's National Inter-Collegiate golf tournament at Ohio State University June 30-July 3 will have to leave their shorts and halters at home.

Although the ban was not among the rules announced yesterday by the women's division of the Ohio State physical education department, it was limited that the abbreviated attire would be taboo.

The co-ed machine swingers will take over the course immediately following the 1941 national inter-collegiate golf tournament scheduled June 23-28. Both team and individual champions will be decided.

FAMILY CORNERS CLASS HONORS

PEWAMO, Mich. — (UP) — It has become almost a tradition in Pewamo that the graduating member of the Jandereno family from high school will be valedictorian.

Three times since 1935 either the son or daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jandereno have topped their class in scholastic standing.

First it was Rita, then Jean and then Donald this year with a 3.9 average. Donald expects to enter the medical profession.

STEELS INJECT CHEERFUL NOTE IN MART TODAY

Bonds, Commodities Remain
Mixed In Directionless
Market Activity.

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels, by advances of fractions to a point, injected a somewhat cheerful note into an otherwise directionless stock market today.

Gains by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown were followed, toward the second hour, by small rises in many other sections of the list.

Bonds and commodity prices were mixed. The London market showed small declines.

Three industrial indices closely watched by stock operators offered little basis for enthusiasm. The rate of steel production was off; freight carloadings were estimated to have risen less than seasonally to 698,000 last week from 679,808 the previous week; the Associated Press index of electric power production declined for last week to 137.7 from 139.

A pickup in furniture sales, reported by the trade, drew attention to stocks related to such manufacturing and distribution.

Gross sales for the quarter amounted to $62,990,646 compared to $67,006,321 for the 1940 period.

KING FLEES AS GREEK ARMY OF EPIRUS QUILTS

Germans Smash Through Pass at Thermopylae; George II Goes to Crete.

Despite the reported Nazi break through the Pass of Thermopylae and the collapse of Greek armies in the northwest, the London radio declared that British-Greek forces were still fighting stubbornly and holding their lines unbroken in "new positions."

Premier Mussolini's high command announced that the Greek armies in Epirus and western Macedonia—previously estimated in Fascist press dispatches at 150,000 men—laid down their arms at 4:04 p. m. (2:04 p. m. EST) last night after three high-ranking Greek officers appeared under a white flag of truce and asked for terms. The answer: unconditional surrender.

In Athens, King George II declared bitterly that the Greek troops had "signed an armistice without our knowing it," and that the surrender "in no way binds the free will of the nation."

The Grecian monarch said that "under the hard destinies of war," he was moving with his government to Crete—75 miles off the southeast tip of Greece—where "we shall be able to continue the fight."

"Our will, the will of the government and of the Greek people mean resistance to the end on the part of Greek troops, which have stubbornly fought beside the English allies who rushed to help us and are still fighting on Greek territory," the king said.

And to the Greek people, engaged by Nazi invaders, "have courage—Good days will come again."

The fate of the British, badly out-numbered and out-gunned even before the collapse of Greece's army of the north-west, was uncertain, two choices appeared:

1. To abandon Greece entirely, presumably in a "Dunkirk" escape with the help of the British fleet.

2. To attempt a hazardous retreat through Athens to the Peloponnese, the "watchdog" of southern Greece.

The German radio asserted that 30,000 British soldiers had gone down with transports sunk by Nazi dive-bombers in Greek waters.

If true, this would be approximately half of the B. E. F. contingent which rushed to the aid of the Hellenic kingdom when Hitler's armies started their twin drives into Yugoslavia and Greece on Palm Sunday, April 6.

German military leaders appeared to be taking a page from ancient history by turning their high-powered war machines into an action paralleling the strategy of Xerxes who smashed the Greeks and took Athens in 480 B. C.

Spartan King Leonidas formed a defense line of 7,000 men in Thermopylae Pass and repulsed early frontal attacks by the Persians, but one of their generals reached the rear of Leonidas' force through another pass. The result was disaster for the Spartans.

Like that Persian general who went to the rear of the Spartans, the German Luftwaffe has flown over the defenders of Thermopylae and, wave on wave, has pounded southern Greece as well as ships in Greek ports.

Athens itself had seven alarms in 24 hours yesterday but was not bombed. The raiders struck heavily, however, at the Port of Piraeus, five miles away, and other coastal points nearby.

German military commentators said the British were in "full retreat," and that the Aegean fight had developed into a "verfolgung"—a follow-through after a break in resistance. The battle, they said, was "nearing the end, with the question remaining how many British and how much equipment will be captured."

On Britain's home front, the port city of Liverpool was blasted for the second successive night in a five-hour bombing attack which started large fires and caused widespread damage.

The RAF struck again over Malta at the German naval base at Brest, on the French coast.

While authorized quarters in Berlin asserted the German tanks had broken through the Thermopylae Pass, and even spoke of the "therapeutic possibility" that Nazis advance units might be already before Athens, the official high command denied this.

German press statements said there are "no indications" that the German army is preparing to advance into Greece.

From a statement by Major General Sir John Dill, commander of British forces in Greece, it was learned that the British army was still fighting in the mountains of Epirus.

Follies Girls Take Look at City

Four members of the cast of Count Berni Vici's "Pan American Follies" were getting ready to take a look at Mansfield yesterday afternoon when The News-Journal photographer caught them in this pose. But it's quite probable the town didn't see much looking as they did. Left to right, the attractive Follies girls are Peggy Messinger, Marie Cyril, Penny Harrison, and Dorothy Carson.

MAYOR ORDERS SUBWAY OPEN

Says It Would Be 'Foolish' To Close It For Water Line Installation.

In the other wait their turn. Watchmen will direct the traffic flow.

In answer to a query as to how traffic would be maintained satisfactorily, Mayor Locke said that the state highway department traffic engineer at the division office in Ashland had assumed responsibility for setting up a plan to keep traffic moving and would help to put the plan in action. The necessary watchman would be supplied by the WPA, the mayor said, and large barricades would be erected to protect motorists.

Crafton and Statler have opposed the plan on the basis of excessive hazards to motorists. Both contend that less time would be taken to complete the project if the street were closed.

The new line will connect Park avenue east with Wayne street, giving additional water to Mansfield's industrial area near the new Westinghouse addition along Dorian street. It will be constructed at a cost of approximately $20,000 and will be fed from the high-pressure line at Park Avenue east.

Work on the new water line has already been completed between Fourth and Fifth streets on Dorian and is being carried through between Fourth and Third streets. Following the laying of the pipe on Dorian, Westinghouse contractors will repave that street.

Mayor Locke has maintained that it would be "foolish" to close route 42, because it is a defense highway and that he thought it impractical to re-route traffic over Fourth street as suggested by his aides. He pointed out that this would entail the crossing of a grade crossing protected only by railroad gates.

The mayor had contended that the whole matter is simply "an engineering problem" which could be completed in three days.

RELEASED BY POLICE

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Robert E. Huffron, 27, was released by police who questioned him yesterday following the death of John Mulvaney, 49.

Coroner Frank M. Copeck, Jr., reported that Mulvaney died of a ruptured heart in a scuffle at his home. Huffron recently was divorced from Mulvaney's stepdaughter.

OPPOSITION TO BIG TAX GROWS

Congressional Committeemen Reported Balking at Stiffer Surtax.

In the staff of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation, at least as far as some details go.

This also was said to be the case with some members of the house ways and means committee, which will do the actual drafting of the big new tax bill.

In the lower brackets, this is what the surtax-plus-present-tax plan would mean in two hypothetical cases:

A single person with an earned income of $1,000 after all allowable deductions except his personal $800 exemption would have to pay a tax of $29 instead of the present $4.

A married couple with two children would pay $100 instead of the present $15 on an earned net income of $3,500, after all deductions except the $2,800 family exemption.

A corporation income surtax of 6 per cent also would be added to the present normal corporation rate of 24 per cent and exemptions from the excess profits tax would be lowered. The treasury estimated that these two changes would add $933,500,000 to revenue.

Major Hays Takes Over New Post In Selective Service.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—In what he described as a reassignment of duties "along military lines," Lt. Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, today named Maj. Harold L. Hays to succeed Maj. M. Ray Allison as executive officer and chief of the administration division.

Major Hays, former superintendent of the Lancaster Boys Industrial school, will retain his former duties as inspection division chief while Major Allison, one-time Ohio finance director, remains chief of registration and classification.

'RATTLE TRAPS' BREAK DOWN ON TWO FIRE CALLS

Booster Pump Equipment on 2 Trucks 'Gives Up Ghost'; One at Lumber Fire.

the central station was called out to replace No. 3's pumper at the Constance lumber fire, the city was left dependent on only two pumps with booster tank equipment to cover possible fires outside the hydrant district.

The Constance fire was in a kiln drier filled to the top with 5,000 feet of lumber. Constance and his workers had just completed filling the kiln yesterday afternoon and the wood was being dried out by a gas heater built into the foundation of the kiln. Loss was estimated by Constance at $500.

The fire was discovered by Robert Constance, 14, the contractor's son, who was playing in the driveway of the Constance home nearby. Noticing smoke pouring from the top of the kiln, the boy ran to warn his father.

No. 3's pumper responded but was hard put to supply water for the fire. The nearest hydrant was a half-mile away at the city line. Four trips were made to the hydrant to refill the pumper before the pump chain broke, ending the pumper's usefulness.

A large crowd, gathered around the burning kiln, was endangered by gas from the heater. The presence of which was unknown to firemen at first. They worked to extinguish the blaze for nearly an hour before it was discovered that the fire was coming from the heater. If the heater had been extinguished, the gas might have blown the kiln to bits, spreading the fire and endangering the lives of firemen and spectators. The heater was finally cut off when checked at its source.

The lumber yard holds lumber used by Constance in constructing homes throughout this district. Near the kiln were piles of lumber and the saw and planing mill which were threatened for hours.

The fire smoldered within the kiln for more than three hours, flames breaking out at the corners periodically. Following the arrival of the Mack pumper which was able to pump water from a nearby cistern, volunteers began to remove some of the lumber from the kiln.

Director Crafton Sunday night said that the matter of obtaining more adequate fire fighting equipment would be brought before council at an early meeting. Firemen from No. 3 reported last night that it would be impossible to buy a replacement chain for the booster tank. They stated that it would be necessary to shop through junkyards to find a chain. Parts on the obsolete pumps are no longer being made.

Mansfield is paying a $50,000 penalty annually because its fire equipment does not meet the standards of the National Board of Underwriters. The city was placed in the 6th premium class in 1934 after warnings for improvements in 1926, 1928 and 1934 were unheeded.

The construction of new water lines in the city has increased the city's fire protection but the antiquated equipment still keeps it in the sixth premium class. The set-back in additional cost of fire insurance on downtown buildings has been estimated at more than $50,000 a year.

Crafton today said that although the water system has been improved that the need for better equipment is still pressing. According to the director, "all the water in the world" would be of little value in the event of a major catastrophe if the city does not obtain better equipment.

The Sunday night fire in the Home Materials and Humphreys lumber yards which caused more than $100,000 damage was still being investigated today by Chief Charles Seeburger and by H. A. Faulhaber, Canton, special investigator for the Pennsylvania railroad.

Faulhaber arrived in the city yesterday and immediately began an inspection of the ruins. His company suffered damage to its equipment in the fire. Faulhaber was also attempting to discover how the fire started.

DENIES CHARGE

Janitor Pleads Innocent In Akron Furnace Murder.

Albert E. Lukens, 58-year-old Akron church janitor and former Mansfield reformatory inmate, was held without bond today to the Summit county grand jury after pleading innocent to first degree murder charges in the death of Miss Ruth Zwicker, 24, Akron music teacher.

Lukens was in the Mansfield reformatory, serving ten years in the early 1930's in connection with the slaying of a Cincinnati woman and then five years as a parole violator after he was linked with the death of a girl in Canton.

Detective Chief Verner Cross charged that the janitor had killed Miss Zwicker in a struggle while he attempted to kiss her and then burned her body in the church furnace Easter Sunday. In court yesterday, Lukens waived preliminary examination and pleaded innocent to first degree murder.

Based on actual cases handled by the 11 agencies of the Community Fund, a dramatization of the round-the-clock service of each agency is being whipped into shape for production Friday night at the opening rally-dinner of the Community Fund in the Westinghouse cafeteria and auditorium.

Called "The Cavalade of the Community Fund," the dramatization will be presented in a series of "blackouts" with Charles Newcomb acting as narrator.

Jane Williams, executive secretary of the Fund, wrote the script and the presentation is being directed by Mrs. V. E. Vining, dinner-rally chairman, and J. Gilbert Baird, chairman of the show.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. and at this time the 12 majors responsible for solicitations of some 300 workers will meet with their respective workers and discuss campaign plans.

The dinner program is open to everyone interested in attending and reservations at 65 cents per plate are now being received by Mrs. V. E. Vining, the Community Fund office, and the 12 campaign majors. Reservations must be made by Thursday although tickets may be purchased at the door.

All agencies will be represented in addition to the drive workers, their husbands and wives.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1941.

It appears that the Philippines have lost interest in assuming the risk of independence.

A newer idea seems to be that in Rome the Romans are doing what the Nazis tell them to do.

Miners' Strike Must Be Ended

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S personal intervention in the soft coal strike while longer delayed than seemed advisable, comes at a time when need for immediate resumption of mining operations is an urgent requirement of the national defense program.

Under ordinary conditions these intermittent disturbances in the coal mining industry do nothing more than inconvenience and penalize millions of coal consumers, but as matters now stand the shut-down of bituminous coal mines is retarding defense production to an extent that cannot be tolerated.

It was said by President Roosevelt that coal production "must be resumed, and promptly." This can mean only that unless operators and mine organization leaders reach quick agreement, effective in both northern and southern fields, the government will be required to compel re-opening of the mines—which is entirely within its power, as an emergency measure in time of national danger.

As a whole, American industry seems to be handling its big emergency job well. Burnham Finney, editor of the American Machinist, in his current book "Arsenal of Democracy," says we're doing considerably better than we did in the last war.

"By the fall of this year," he concludes, "we shall see real results—quantities of tanks and planes and guns that we can actually touch and know that they are not phantoms 'on order.' Once plants get going, production may come off the lines in larger volume than is anticipated."

This is fine, as far as it goes, and evidences the vast possibilities of this country if present strikes can be settled and others avoided—so that each American will be doing his full share toward attaining national security and giving all possible aid to Britain.

Fireproofing the Nation

MOBILIZATION of American thought and action to strengthen national defense through a more efficient fire defense, is progressing rapidly, according to a report by W. E. Mallalieu, director, 75th anniversary activities of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

"Our desire to literally fire-proof the nation in this time of crisis is the keynote of our anniversary program," he said. "During the 75 years of its existence, the national board has dedicated itself to public service. Today, our activities transcend ordinary aid and are a vital contribution to national defense."

Public interest in this great fire defense program is growing daily. Since the start of the program, hundreds of nationally prominent individuals and groups throughout the country have actively participated.

This is the greatest and best organized drive against fire ever undertaken. Men in touch with defense know the ever-present menace of fire. It wastes more than money and materials—it wastes time. Today's defense battle is a battle against time.

Big Demand for New Cars

SALE of new automobiles in Mansfield in March reflects a prosperous condition in this city and is further borne out by the high point reached in industrial and mercantile employment, as revealed in the monthly survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce.

The extraordinary sale of new cars, which has also been noted in other cities, has two possible explanations. One is that many people are now making more money and are attracted by the beauty and mechanical improvements on new models, and the other is that prospects of price raises and possible shortage is causing some people to buy a car now instead of postponing purchase.

In any event, those hundreds of shiny new cars in this vicinity, and the millions of them over the country, make a fine appearance—and give an idea of one of the advantages of the American way of life.

Story of An Amazing Desk

THE hand-carved oak desk used by Joseph Pulitzer for 28 years has just been given to the Graduate School of Journalism which he founded at Columbia university.

The desk was made for him in 1883 when he took over the World. It moved with him into the World's new building in 1890. Mr. Pulitzer used it until his death in 1911, and it remained in his private office until 1931, when his sons sold the World.

These facts will make the desk a shrine for newspaper people, it has an appeal for other persons, as well. The great desk contains 99 cubbyholes and ten drawers of various shapes and sizes. There is a little of the squirrel or the bluejay in most human beings. They love to tuck things away in pigeon holes or little boxes or drawers, and a desk that provides such a wealth for storing treasures makes almost any clutter seem for a while to be useful.

But think of the problem of finding just what you wanted when you wanted it, in the midst of 109 possible lurking places!

When 'Luck' Is Most Likely

LUCK has been an important factor in many successful chemical experiments, says Dr. Frank C. Mathers of Bloomington, Ind., in his address before the Electrochemical Society, Inc. He said that many of the most important discoveries in chemistry have been made by accident and those of other scientists. Probably it could be truthfully said that luck has been an essential part of success in other fields—including business, art, farming, and anything that might be mentioned.

This is the recommendation for sitting down with idle minds and hands to wait for luck to present itself.

"It must be remembered," Dr. Mathers said, "that luck seems to come only to those who keep plodding along with experiments." Make the subconscious mind have something to do with that. And he quoted the late Theodore Roosevelt as saying, "With ordinary ability and extraordinary determination, most things are possible."

Luck for which the lucky person is not prepared is not likely to last long.

Railroads Plan To Avoid Clogging

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Railroad executives are doing their utmost to prevent a recurrence of what happened in the last war—when the government took over and operated the railroads.

The railroad men are desperately opposed to any such thing. They remember with horror what happened to the roads during that period, and the long uphill haul to get the roads back into decent shape.

What the railroad men are trying to tell whoever will listen to them now—and this even goes to the extent of anticipating actual entry of the United States in the war—is that there is no possibility of any such chaos as forced the original seizure of the railroads, in 1917, if only a little common sense is used.

Plans have been laboriously worked out to prevent the worst feature of 1917—the clogging of all railroad yards at seaports. The trouble in 1917, as every railroad man knows, was that goods destined for Europe were given priorities indiscriminately. If anything was wanted for the war, it was given priority. That meant that the freight cars so labeled were given right of way over everything and shot through to the ports.

When they arrived there, often there was no further plan for moving them. The ships about to sail were loaded with things according to a different list of priorities—those made by General Peyton March, chief of staff here, at the cabled direction of General

Pershing, who was in command in France.

THE result was that scores of thousands of loaded freight cars cluttered up the terminal yards, not only taking those cars themselves out of use for the time being, but slowing down the operation of the terminals, and the loading of the ships.

As the cars piled up in the terminals, and other cars whose loads had ship as well as railroad priorities were slowed down in their movements as a result, naturally a tremendous freight car shortage developed in the country.

The railroads were helpless to correct the situation, though their executives realized what was happening. But no one had the courage to say that this or that shipment of freight, needed in France, but not needed badly enough to warrant ship priorities, should not be moved to the ports UNTIL ship priorities were issued for them.

FOR several years now, ever since the war in Europe became imminent, railroad executives have been working with the government to set up a system which would accomplish precisely this. If it works, and there is no reason why it should not, there would be no congestion at the seaport terminal yards.

That would mean that ships could be loaded with the utmost dispatch. That would mean also that every freight car could be performing its maximum service instead of being used not only as a storage warehouse, but a warehouse which by its position impeded the flow of goods from America to the war zone.

The railroad executives are also talking convincingly about incorrect conclusions drawn from figures with regard to the number of serviceable freight cars and locomotives. They point out details of how much faster freight trains run now than in the old World War days, how many more cars the big new engines can haul, etc.

One of their favorite examples is that the freight now carried between the Pacific and Atlantic coast by 113 ships could be carried by the railroads in one 70-car train daily on each of the railroad lines reaching the Pacific coast.

Listen World!

Turn On Heat!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S a slang phrase—You don't like slang phrases? Well, just for once, take a chance on this one. For it carries big medicine that's better for what ails you than a hundred classical quotations.

What's the phrase? "TURN ON THE HEAT!" You weren't made to be as you are now—cold and limping in some dark niche of life—crawling through some narrow rut.

You were meant to flame! glow and sparkle! Meant to see and feel and express beauty and power, ecstasy and everlasting adventure.

You were meant to be 20 people instead of one—meant to live purposefully—godly. Remember that first version of our own creation?

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul."

So you were made with the warm spark flaming through you and the first of a god quickening your clay. And so you were meant to live.

But what have you done with that spark?

You have banked it. BANKED IT WITH FEAR. YOU HAVE BANKED THE FIRES WITHIN YOU—FIRES OF ENTHUSIASM, CURIOSITY, FAITH.

You have banked them deeper and deeper under the cold, gray ash of fear.

And now you complain that you're going downhill in life, going nowhere out of it.

WHY SHOULD YOU GET ANYTHING OUT OF LIFE UNLESS YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO USE IT?

Why should you niggle and burn and fling your feet over far better when you refuse to use your own fire?—a refuse even to use that you have a right to use?

TURN ON THE HEAT! Turn on the heat of your own creation and curiosity. Turn on the heat of your own self-respect. Turn on the heat of your own life. Turn on the heat of your own life.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

President Hinted To Dan Tobin That He'd Veto Anti-Strike Bill

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The president has taken no public stand on the Vinson anti-strike bill, but he dropped a clue to his attitude during his luncheon with AFL chief Dan Tobin. The genial, white-thatched boss of the teamsters' union is one of Roosevelt's closest labor friends. Also, one of the most outspoken. He bluntly denounced the bill as a reactionary attack on labor, and warned the president that if it became law it would have a bad effect on the defense program.

"You can't legislate a working man into staying on a job if he wants to quit," Tobin argued. "And that's just what this bill amounts to. It is neither constitutional nor necessary. I realize that a strike can be a serious hazard to the defense program, but restrictive legislation against unions isn't the answer."

Furthermore, the mediation board you have set up is performing splendidly. It has settled every major strike turned over to it without delay. What more can congress ask? Actually, this strike situation isn't as serious as some anti-labor congressmen want the country to believe. They are making a big hullabaloo about strikes for the real purpose of cracking down on the workers."

When Tobin finished, the president, who had been listening silently, remarked quietly, "You needn't worry about the bill becoming law, Dan."

Tobin is convinced that Roosevelt meant he was ready to use his veto power if that became necessary.

Irish Bases.

TOBIN also urged the president to use his influence to persuade Eire to make air bases available to Britain.

"Some Irish-American friends," Tobin said, "asked me to intercede with you to send military supplies to Eire. I told them that I felt Eire should make the first move by turning over bases in Ireland to the RAF."

"I was born in Ireland, but I am Irish and always an American, and I believe it would be in our interest as well as Britain's to help the RAF to get the bases."

Lonely Diplomats.

REPRESENTATIVE Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts pricked up her ears when family matters were mentioned in a house appropriations committee hearing. The state department was asking for funds to bring home on leave the junior members of our foreign service.

"Are these clerks allowed to marry foreign girls?" asked Mrs. Rogers.

The state department spokesman said they were, explaining that if they didn't have a chance to get home once in a while and meet American girls, the young diplomats were very likely to marry foreigners.

"One advantage of this bill," said the official, "is that it will give these young men a better opportunity to marry American girls. You take a young fellow and send him away 3,000 miles from home, and he can't afford to go home on leave, and if you say, 'No, you cannot marry a foreigner,' what is he going to do?"

Mrs. Rogers spoke again: "He is probably lonely over there, too?"

"But he is lonely," said the official.

Nazi Racket.

AS IF being driven from their homes isn't enough, refugees from the occupied countries run into another misfortune in Lisbon, Portugal, last open port in western Europe.

The U. S. secret service has learned of a giant counterfeiting ring in Lisbon, believed to be operated by Nazis, which has been ruthlessly preying on refugees waiting for passage on the few ships and planes leaving for America.

Large sums of phoney American money and "raised" notes have been exchanged for francs and other European currency at a so-called "Black Bourse," where refugees are led to believe they will get a higher exchange rate, in dollars, than at banks.

The Secret Service was informed of the racket by Portuguese officials, who believe the bogus money is being printed either in Germany or Czechoslovakia. Thousands of refugees have been fleeced by the counterfeiters.

A French refugee who arrived in Boston recently with his family was heartbroken to learn from a bank that his entire savings, $5,500, had been exchanged on the "Black Bourse" for American $2 bills which had been skillfully raised to "50's."

Two-Dollar Men.

THE investigation of dollar-a-year men launched by Missouri's Senator Harry Truman has considerable undercover support in the OPM, particularly among younger officials who, in some cases, do the work for which their big-name superiors get the credit.

The youngsters jest about this among themselves, and the other day several wisecracks were a mock "news story" that is getting a big laugh when handed around. It reads:

"A bottleneck in the production of dollar-a-year men, seriously endangering the progress of national defense, will entail the imposition of rigid priorities in the near future, it was learned authoritatively today."

"High OPM officials explained that the shortage developed as a result of competitive bidding for dollar-a-year men between the OPM production division and the American Battle Monuments commission. As a result, they said, the existing stockpile has been depleted. They forecast as an immediate possibility the recruitment of $2-a-year men, the supply of which is virtually inexhaustible."

"A hitch in this solution to the problem, however, may develop because of the activities of the Defense Commission Price Stabilization division, whose director, Leon Henderson, is known to fear a price spiral if this plan is adopted."

"Taking quick steps to meet the emergency, Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, announced that he was considering a $12,000,000 loan to American industry to enable production of several thousand gross of dollar-a-year men."

Immediate delivery, he warned, cannot be expected, inasmuch as the plan contemplates production of the executives through a training-from-within apprenticeship program. Embryo dollar-a-year men will begin as first vice presidents in hundreds of American industries, he explained, earning $25,000 annually to start with, and working down over the course of a few months to the $1 salary. Once they have achieved this status, industry spokesmen said, they will be released to the government."

Note—One top OPM official will have no part of the $1-a-year men. He is General Counsel John Lord O'Brien, who has barred them from his staff. All lawyers in his division can have no private business connections and must work on a full-time government pay basis.

A Farmer's Diary

Scout Cabin

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AROUND the hill north of our village, up until last year, lay a tract of waste land. A stream washed through deep banks below the road and the steep slopes were washed and gullied. The village bought 10 acres for a municipal dump.

Now it happens that our Chamber of Commerce sponsors the local Boy Scout troop. The councilmen are men of imagination. They used to be boys, themselves. Shortly they got their heads together with the Boy Scouts and their leaders—and envisioned that strip of waste land converted into a beautiful park. Practical men pointed out that there would still be plenty of room for a dump behind the hill, and more imaginative members suggested reforesting the slope and damming the stream to form a swimming pool.

One day last spring a Community picnic was held at the spot. Seventy people came, with tools and food—and right then they began the new Scout Cabin.

One night last week the keys to the new building were presented to the Boy and Girl Scouts of our community. Executives of the scouting movement who came from some distance were surprised and delighted with what they found. What began as an airy dream has materialized into a roomy story and a half bungalow with a grand Scout meeting room below and a bunk room overhead. It has a mammoth cobblestone fireplace at one end, great beams overhead and finished pine walls and ceiling. Furnishings and light fixtures are rustic and handmade.

Landscaping is not complete. A stream has a new bridge and several thousand seedlings are being planted.

Here to the wide rustic veranda came the village band in dashing uniforms; here came the clergy of our town, the school heads and the bankers and the Legionnaires. Here came whole ranks of autos,

She Loved a Spy + + + + +

CHAPTER XXXIII

Dinner was a happy occasion. Even Thomas seemed gay and carefree, and Joan, carefully scrutinizing Scot Reynolds, noticed that his eyes were fastened upon Sybil. As for Joan, her happiness knew no bounds.

It was just 9:30 when they reached the airport. Paul's plane, right on schedule, was landing. Joan broke away from the little group to run across the flying field just as Paul appeared.

"Oh darling!" Joan cried, burying her head against the warmth of Paul's overcoat. "Are you all right?"

"Of course I am, honey!"

"Where's Karl?" she asked, looking around.

"All the prisoners are in the other plane."

"Tell me about it. Did you get all of them?"

"Everyone," Paul said with satisfaction. "That's one spy ring that will never operate again. But let's not talk about it, dear. We've had enough of that in the last few months. From now on it's going to be Mr. and Mrs. O'Malley."

The next week was the happiest Joan had ever known. Paul planned to take a month's vacation so they would have plenty of time for a honeymoon before they went back to Washington for his new assignment. They applied for their marriage license, which means a three-day wait in California, and planned to be married the following Saturday, meanwhile Joan shopped for clothes and household objects which she could take to her new home with her. She bought monogrammed crystal ash trays, glasses, luncheon sets, bath towels, and an alabaster lamp. It was the lamp that finally brought an inquiry from Paul.

"What are you going to do with all this stuff?" he asked, surveying her latest purchase.

"Sybil will send them after we've found an apartment in Washington," Joan told him happily.

"Darling, you don't know how much fun it is to shop, especially for your own home! Women are funny about things like that."

"Evidently I don't understand the feminine mind," Paul laughed.

For an instant, Joan remembered Karl Miller, who had seemed to understand everything about the feminine mind. She ran to Paul and put her arms about his neck. "I'm glad you don't!" she cried, kissing him. Paul, who she believed, won't we?"

"You bet we will," Paul said tenderly.

"Just think! A whole month before you have to be back in Washington."

"We still haven't decided where to go for our honeymoon," he reminded her. "Where shall it be? Honolulu? New York? Or," he added, smiling, "how about Mexico?"

Joan shuddered. "Never again, thank you! Let's make it Honolulu, darling!"

"Honolulu it is then!" Paul said. "I'll make the reservations tomorrow."

Joan related their plans to Sybil, adding, "Isn't it wonderful, Syb? I never dreamed I could be so happy."

Sybil was looking rather happy herself these days. She had spent every single evening since their return in the company of Scot Reynolds.

"You know, Joan, I don't think I'll look for another job."

"But Syb! What will you live on?" Joan asked in surprise.

"I still have some money in the bank that I saved when I was working before, and Scot and I, well, we just seem to be in love," she finished, blushing.

"I think that's wonderful."

"Of course, we've known each other only a week," Sybil continued uncertainly. "And we wouldn't want to be married right away. But I have enough money to last a couple of months and if we both feel the same way then . . . Her blue eyes were shining and the bitter look was gone from her face.

"You'll be married," Joan finished for her. "And Syb, that means that you'll live in Washington too! Paul told me that Scot's F. B. I. assignment will keep him here only temporarily. Just think! We'll all be together!"

"Yes. And Scot doesn't want me to work," Sybil said proudly. Joan knew that she was thinking of her short-lived first marriage. Her husband had recklessly gambled away both their salaries until Sybil divorced him. "Scot wants to take care of me and have a real home," Sybil went on. "You don't know how much this means to me, Joan!"

"Yes, I do know. I know exactly. But you mustn't think about the past. You must forget it. Just as I have forgotten Karl Miller. I suppose most girls have one unhappy love affair, but we all learn through the experience."

"I have. And everything is so different now."

"A new life for both of us," Joan said seriously.

Thomas was happier too. Paul had found a job for him and through the salary was not large, he could manage well enough and most important of all, he was free from the tranny of Karl Miller. His face, once clouded by fright and uncertainty, had taken on a new vigor and self-assurance. Paul had promised to try to get information about his wife, held in a Nazi concentration camp, and Thomas held real hope for the future.

"I owe everything to you, Mr. O'Malley," he said. "If it hadn't been for you, I'd still be on that boat."

"Don't think about it," Paul advised. "You have nothing more to fear from Karl—or any of them."

"What became of the ship and your F. B. I. friend, the radio operator?"

"Karl never did suspect him. The ship came back to San Francisco and Jim escaped. The rest of them were taken into custody through his information."

There was only one unsolved problem—the whereabouts of Paul's sister. Paul had refused to discuss Patricia with Joan, saying, "I don't want to talk about it, honey! When things are straightened out I'll tell you."

"But can't you tell me about Mrs. Murdock? I know something must have happened. Her shop is closed."

But Paul would not discuss it and Joan knew that even when she became his wife there would be times when he would have to maintain secrecy.

"I shouldn't have asked," she said, kissing him. "Did you get the tickets for the boat?"

"All set!" Paul said, but she fancied there was a worried note in his voice. She knew that he would not want to leave San Francisco with the problem of Paul unsettled, yet she dared not inquire further.

"I'm upset about it," she confessed to Sybil the day before the wedding. "I'm afraid Paul feels that he ought to stay here but he doesn't want to disappoint me."

"I think he'd tell you if he really felt that way," Sybil said. "Paul isn't the kind of person to shirk a responsibility."

Joan continued to think of it, however, and that night she decided to ask him, but when he arrived at the apartment she knew from his expression that he had brought good news.

"It's all settled!" he said. "Pat is at a hotel. I just took her there myself. She wants us to come down right away to see her."

"Of course! But where has she been, Paul?"

"In jail," Paul said briefly. "Just as I suspected, when we disappeared, Pat tried to go to the police but Mrs. Murdock got hold of her first. She held her in her apartment and had her doing all kinds of things; sending messages in her own handwriting and delivering plans to other members of the spy ring. When the police finally raided the beauty shop, Pat was naturally involved. They've held both of them at headquarters awaiting my return. I had all the evidence on Mrs. Murdock from the ship, but I had a hard time convincing them that Pat was just a kid who didn't know what she was doing."

"How could they believe that your sister was really involved?"

"There were so many things in her handwriting. Of course she was forced to write them. But now everything is straightened out and she's free. I don't mind telling you, I'm relieved."

"I know!" Joan cried sympathetically. "And darling, I think you're the cleverest man in the world!"

"I hope you'll always think so," Paul said, kissing her.

And so their wedding day dawned and there was no flaw to mar their perfect happiness.

It was a quiet ceremony at the small church Joan and Sybil had attended for years. Thomas was there with Pat. Sybil held tightly to Scot Reynolds' hand. Joan wore a pale green wool dress and coat with soft fur collar.

As they took their marriage vows, peace filled Joan's heart—the peace of a woman who is sure of her choice. This wedding was not the outgrowth of a mad infatuation such as she had felt for Karl Miller. It was the result of sincere devotion, mutual trust and respect.

Her eyes were wet with tears as she glanced at Paul's face. He was slipping the wedding ring on her finger. She heard his voice, strong, yet so full of tenderness. . . . "With this ring—I thee wed" . . .

As they left the church long shadows of late afternoon fell across the streets of San Francisco and Joan's heart was full.

The little party returned to Paul's hotel for an early supper. The ship was sailing at midnight. Joan's bags had been brought to the hotel, filled with lovely clothes for the trip. Everything was in readiness for their departure.

But as they sat happily in the dining room Paul was summoned to the telephone. "Long distance, Mr. O'Malley!"

"Hope it isn't bad news," Scot Reynolds said with a frown when Paul had gone.

"Bad news? But what could happen now?" Joan cried, distressed.

Scot smiled. "When you're in our line of work you never know what is going to pop."

When Paul returned, Joan knew that something had happened. His brown eyes were troubled as he said, "Honey, I'm terribly sorry this had to happen . . ."

"Oh, Paul! What is it?"

Paul and Scot exchanged glances. "Orders from Washington. A special assignment. My vacation is cancelled."

The others looked at them in sympathetic silence. For a moment Joan thought she would cry, then seeing Paul's distress, she lifted her chin and smiled. "It doesn't matter, darling!"

He took her hand. "I don't have to be in Washington until Monday night. We'll fly. At least we'll have this week end."

She turned happy, confident eyes to his. "We'll have the rest of our lives, darling!"

"The rest of our lives," Paul repeated, kissing her tenderly.

POLES SHIPPED 2,500 MILES

SEATTLE, Wash. — (UP) — It was quite a task to deliver two 5-ton red cedar totem poles to a Chicago Boys' club, 2,500 miles away.

Ernest Gebert, veteran wood carver, considers the poles one of his artistic triumphs. They are 45 feet tall, and took 14 months to complete.

The poles will be placed at the entrance of the boys' club building donated by the late L. L. Valentine, Chicago millionaire.

LAGS BEHIND

Ants Found To Lead Men In Race For Survival.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (UP) — In a neck-and-neck race for survival, man is lagging behind the ant, according to Prof. William T. Heron, a University of Minnesota psychologist.

"It seems to me that up to now the small-brained insects have been winning the race," he said.

The reason for this, he explained, is that man-made civilization has gone in cycles while ants and similar insects—flies, social beetles and bees—have continued steadily for 15,000,000 years.

Their survival is due, Heron said, to control of reproduction and strict division of labor. "more organized than man's in some instances." Man's civilization, however, developed because man's brains enables him to adopt himself to new situations, while ant's instinct is sufficient only to meet all situations in the same manner.

CROCHETED RUG PATTERN 2780

Rug making is fascinating—done in easy squares! The size of this one depends on the number of squares you make and join. It's done in four strands of string, candlewick, or rag. Pattern 2780 contains directions for

PATTERN 9691

By MARIAN MARTIN

Simple but with plenty of veer and individuality is this frock for Spring and Summer. It's a Marian Martin Pattern 9691, and just what you need. If you like new angles, just see that attractive yoke that "squares off" into a full-length front panel. The soft-cut sides of the bodice are gathered below the yokes and above the waist-seams. There's a smart panel down the back of the slim yet easy skirt. Notice how the fullness of the sleeves is gathered-in to fit the neckline in a round or a square shape. And tie an all-round sash in front, or let it come from the panel sides to tie in back. Try the yoke and panel in contrast for dramatic effect.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers) By ADELE GARRISON

For fully two minutes after I had visualized the consequences which in all probability would follow the capture of Marion's letter by the gangster in the next car, I sat motionless, stiff, incapable of coherent thought, let alone action. If the gangster had entered the car at that moment and had come to my train seat to demand the letter, I would not have been able to put up any defense against him. I had known that travel was light at this hour of the day upon this particular road, but I was shocked to realize that except for a very old man dozing in a compartment at the other end of the car, I was alone.

If I only had some inkling of the gangster's plan! This was the thought that beat upon my brain as I tried to evolve some counter-plan for his undoing. Would he wait until we were in the New York station before attempting his coup, relying upon the indifference of city crowds for camouflage of his attempt? Or would he force the issue in this lonely car, sometime along the journey?

Reason told me one thing. He would wait until after the conductor had appeared and taken the tickets. There were but two more stops before the city for this through train, and after the conductor's coming trip he would appear no more for an hour at least.

Hiding the Letter.

Should I appeal to the conductor, showing him my hidden badge accrediting me to the diplomatic secret service and asking his aid? I debated that course for several long minutes, then discarded it as inadvisable. Above all things, my father desired secrecy for this affair of Marion's. I could not risk having any of its details at the mercy of a possibly garrulous railroad conductor.

My fingers had been busy during my mental debate. Conscious that I could repeat every syllable of Marion's letter, "every dotted 'i' and crossed 't,'" I resolved to hide it securely before the coming of the gangster to my side. In my small bag was a sewing kit with several threaded needles. With my eyes constantly watching the door, I selected one whose color was nearest the seat upholstery. I took the letter from my bag, ran the threaded needle through it, once, snipped the thread from the needle and tied the ends into a small knot. Then I thrust the letter far down into the side of the upholstered seat, leaving the knot tucked into a corner in such fashion that no one but myself could possibly discern it. If I had not known it was there, I could not have found it myself, once I had tucked it away.

There was still no sign of the gangster, and opening my bag, I brought my little silence pistol to the top of it, covered it with a handkerchief and set the open bag beside me upon the seat where I could keep my hand upon it if I should see the man I feared coming in the door from the car he had entered.

Waiting Attack!

He was not long in appearing, a trim, grey-haired man of the New England type, given to few words and those only what were necessary. He put the stub of the ticket in the top of the seat and I ventured a banal question, for the postponement of what I feared would soon be an inevitable hour. "Are we running on time?" I asked, and flushed as his calmly appraising eyes met mine.

"We are," he said laconically, and departed, leaving me quaking with the fear that soon I would see the gangster coming through the car door.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 24.

A RATHER active and eventful state of affairs may be presaged from the ruling astral influences. There is prospect of the spirits being pitched to high tempo with the energies and impulses generous, expansive and probably prone to extravagances and long chances. With initiative and enterprise together with the emotions under control and turned in the direction of creative and productive channels there might be promise of laying some very profitable and enduring foundations. Enthusiasm and optimism may lead to constructive achievements if wisely regulated, but beware false promises and safeguard the assets.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of expansion and definite achievements, with initiative and enthusiasm under high stimuli for putting over ambitious projects. Both old and new interests should thrive, although an inclination toward extravagance, gambling, high pressure and personal indulgence might militate against the most constructive results. Regulation of the impulses and emotions might bring sure returns and more enduring profits.

A child born on this day should be resourceful, enterprising, enthusiastic and impulsive, ambitious and audacious. It should be a steady worker, however, and should render good account of its creative abilities, if the gaming instinct is subdued.

MEETING THURSDAY

Members of the Mary Martha Bible class will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. J. D. Wilcox, 635 West Fourth street.

MEN WEAR APRONS

Direct from the coast comes the tale of a man who, wearied of apron strings and self-consciousness directly traceable to feminine aprons, designed for himself an apron to suit a man's taste—and figger. Throwing apron strings to the wind, Bart Bonebrake, advertising man of Los Angeles, took a straight piece of cotton drill, slipped a steel spring through the top hem, clamped it around his chest, and christened it "His Own."

But friends discovered it and wouldn't give him any peace till he made some for them. And then the women wanted them, too. So he had to turn manufacturer as well as designer. Now they're available in hand-blocked designs depicting a Mexican scene, a rooster, a fish, and a man in a dog-house shown above.

Besides providing the right atmosphere and coverage for bar, kitchen, barbecue, or hobby, this apron is easily washable after removing the spring. Many a woman is giving one to her husband to keep him happy in the kitchen.

When you have nuggels of ham (that refuse to slice, pop them into sandwich fixings like this: grind the cooked ham, and to one cup of it add a little vinegar, one tablespoon peanut butter, and some chopped celery. Spread between slices of buttered bread.

A tasty hominy-bacon-egg dish for lunch is made by seasoning one can hominy with bacon fat and 1 cup crumbled, cooked bacon. Let it simmer slowly in skillet, mashing with a fork. Beat in three eggs and serve on hot platter with more bacon.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay "The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSE OF A REDOUBLE

Proper use of a redouble over the opponent's informatory or takeout double is to show general high card strength and indicate to your partner the probability that your side may punish a bid by the other side. Misuse of it, to indicate a fine fit with your partner's suit and the likelihood of his being able to make the contract easily is seldom profitable. With such a holding, it is usually better to jump his bid, even to a level higher than he is likely to be able to play successfully, in order to erect a barrier against stronger opponent bidding.
